Chilembwe is said to have drawn parallels between his rising and that of John Brown, and stated his wish to "strike a blow and die" immediately before the rising started. [45] [46]

However, this is based solely on what George Simeon Mwase , who was absent from Nyasaland in 1915, wrote 17 years after the event.

John Chilembwe - Wikipedia

And the bulk of the people interviewed share the reasoning

Read Free Voices From The Chilembwe Rising Witness Testimonies Made To The Nyasaland Rising Commission Of Inquiry that the reverend 's quest to bring freedom for Malawi really bared some fruits, as they believe that while the rising did not have an immediate result, the seed for freedom was planted. Hence the blood of Chilembwe and his counterparts spoke more than their voices.
